Well this seems like another commie waste of money. Mandatory Disclosure you must be joking, when we get mandatory disclosure of how much this lot of bull dust is costing and how many government hand rags are bleeding the system, then we the people with a brain can put a stop to this money wasting bull dust. How you can expect any fool to make statements regarding electricity and water usage to a purchaser, when the purchaser could have a family twice the size and have a lot more equipment to plug in. Now be fore you lot waste any more money let's look at Queensland and the stupid declaration the set of commie fools put in place. Asking people to make statements about usage and insulation, ask the average person what insulation is in the walls and they would not have a clue and the clowns who are proposing this clap trap would also not have a clue. The only thing that should be put in a statement is that the house does not have Labor Government supplied insulation in the roof. So do me and all sensible people a favour stop this rubbish now and put the money in the hospital system where it's going to do some good.
